Humanities' Oracle

Focussing on the Correct Things in Life

Once upon a time there lived a wolf in the deep part of the jungle and it had lost its front legs due to an accident. This wolf was observed by a man living on the edge of the jungle for a few days and he saw that God had a novel way of providing food for this handicapped wolf who couldn't hunt for its own food as well.

He noticed an occurrence twice or thrice that a tiger would prey upon an animal have its fill and leave the remains for the wolf to satiate its hunger. The man having deep faith in God said to himself that “if God can provide for this handicapped animal, then surely the Lord will provide for me as well, and I just need to pray & maintain my faith”.

He kept on praying and did nothing else till he was on the verge of losing consciousness, he heard a booming voice without any image “My child, you have chosen wrongly, you should have chosen the tiger for imitation and not the disabled wolf as you were an able-bodied person who should have become a provider for others”.

So, always choose your role model aptly and never use your faith as an excuse for laziness, make it your strength and act accordingly to achieve your desired goals in life. The faculty at KIET Group of Institutions participate actively to promote correct decision-making by the students.
