Humanities' Oracle

Looking at and Looking through

All of us who grew up reading comics would have definitely gone through the famous comic strips of 'PEANUTS and good ol' Charlie Brown'. A much recalled & high value conversation from that series between Lucy and Charlie goes like this - as they see out of the window, Lucy remarks, "Oh, I see birds and trees, and flowers and sunshine." While Charlie says, "I see fingerprints and bugs and smudges." Then Lucy says to him, "Charlie brown, don't you know that windows are for looking through and not at!" We should also take our life like a window - we should look through our obstacles and challenges to observe the glory and happiness of winning; or we can instead look at what's wrong and all that we will observe are the bugs and smudges and the hindrances. So, when we stand by the window of our life's challenges, we should choose wisely and use our strengths to convert them into opportunities. If we imagine the happiness of winning, we won't focus on our shortcomings or look at the smudges and fingerprints. Winners think of their strengths and how these assisted them to win in the past. They imagine success, feel the happiness of winning and bingo-success is theirs. As the famous quote by Henry Ford says, "Whether you think you can, or you think you can't - you're right."
