Humanities' Oracle

Life's hardships are inevitable but don't let these challenges alter your feelings of self-worth. It was the beginning of a new school session, a class teacher stood up in front of her students holding a bill of Rupees 1000/-. She asks all her students, "Put your hands up if you want this money". Every student hand in the room goes up, to which the teacher says, "Now I am going to give this money to the someone present here in the class, but first let me do this....." She takes the bill and crumples it up in her hands, before asking, "who still want this?"

Most of the students' hands stay up.

The teacher then drops the bill on the floor, stomps and grinds it into the ground, and picks it up back up. She asks again, "Who all would like to have it now as well?" All the students' hands still raised up. The teacher exclaimed, "All the notes are dirty and crumpled, but even then everyone present in the class wish to have them." She said that "Dear students I would like a share a lesson through this currency to you. It did not matter what I did to this money. They were muddy and crumpled, but you still wanted them. The reason was only one. The value of the currency did not change even with its crease and dirtiness. It was still worth of Rupees 1000."

She continued explaining, "These crumps and dirt are the challenges and hard times that every person has in their lifetime. There will be similar times in your life when you're dropped, bruised, and muddled. Time keeps on changing. It never remains same. If you have hardship, then the time will come when you shall enjoy the ripen fruit of these hardships. This time may vary as per the skills and intellect of an individual. But remember, as the currency did not lose its value, similarly never give up in life and lose your value. Just like the value of currency, keep yourself confident in whatever be the situation."

Moral of the story:

Life hardships are inevitable. Life makes us face hard times and happiness according to the actions performed. Challenges makes us strong and confident. Don't let these challenges alter your feeling of self-worth. You are unique. You always have something valuable and different to offer to this world.
