“Gratitude is my Attitude!”

By:- Dr. Preeti Chitkara, Manager-Institutional Affairs

“When Gratitude becomes your default setting, life changes.”

Acknowledging the good that you already have in your life is the foundation for all abundance. Gratitude is the greatest blessing and the fundamental resource for strengthening individual well-being. In organizations, gratitude is most crucial to employees' efficiency, success, and productivity that improves the organizational citizens' behaviours, and climate.

When we love what we already have, it fills us with enthusiasm & energy and as a result, we end up creating more abundance with that positive energy. As I swoon into the joy of accomplishing a great deal in my life, during my tenure with this marvellous institute, KIET Group of Institutions, I cannot put into words the appreciation for my colleagues and the gratitude towards my mentors & the institute for their incredible backing and assistance in building and enlightening my pathway to success. KIET has contributed enormously in enabling me create positive relationships, social support, and co-workers' well-being. It has taught me how to shed the negative emotions at the workplace and enhance the organizational health and success.

When the institute recognizes and acknowledges our work and endeavours to provide us with needed facilities & healthy working environment, our confidence is enhanced that permeates enormous strength within us. My achievements & accolades are the outcome of the copious faith of the organization in my capabilities as they gave me the opportunity and exposure to stand independently and attain professional stability.

Let us wire ourselves for positivity & gratitude as when you're grateful, fear disappears & abundance appears.
