

From the Desk of KIET Dignitaries

Prof. (Dr.) Adesh Kumar Pandey
Dean-ITS & HoD-IT

Students are experiencing new learning opportunities due to digital transformation in education. Especially in higher education, there have been significant changes during the pandemic. Since the first phase of the pandemic had almost collapsed ongoing operations of the institutes. The education industry had to take all steps to adapt to digital education. Therefore, it became imperative for KIET to introduce new practices in education to transform processes and products so that everyone can learn and teach better. The education pattern has become more flexible, borderless, and self-paced, which has transformed the way we learn. As a result, more than 5000 self-shoot videos have been uploaded on KIET Career Maestro-YouTube channel. The links to all the recorded videos along with the study material have been provided to the students through Moodle LMS. Test case based lab manual have been designed and uploaded on LMS to conduct the programming practical which can be automatically graded for the benefit of students and faculty members.

We also encouraged our students, faculty, and staff members to enhance their knowledge through MOOC courses, and resulting from that more than 12000 certifications were successfully completed on Coursera only. KIET is continuously evolving, and the digital transition is enhancing pedagogy, providing a new learning experience for students. We must make sure that we rebalance the classroom and remote learning experiences to give students the best learning and engagement experiences.

Industrial Visit: An essential to professional success

Visits to industrial sites are crucial to establishing good relationships with companies and increasing networking opportunities. These trips provide students with many opportunities for corporate training and internships, which in turn increase their employability. A good professional career requires more than theoretical knowledge.

The goal of an industrial visit is to go beyond academics by giving students a hands-on experience of real-life work. The purpose of industrial visits is to bridge the growing gap between theoretical learning and practical experience. It gives them an insight into the prevalent modus operandi and employment practices of the industry.

To accomplish this objective, KIET Group of Institutions, Delhi-NCR provides students with an opportunity to interact with industry experts to provide a realistic view of the work practices of the companies. Students can observe how professionals live, learn, and put theory into practice. Faculty coordination with students is increased as well, which is another important aspect of these industrial visits.

Finally, I would conclude myself with a famous quote "Science is about knowing, engineering is about doing".
